Mr. T. N. Campbell, on behalf of St. Andrew's society, thanked the St. George society for their kind wishes. He hoped that this fraternal feeling would continue and that each several member would do their best to foster

This was followed by a song from Mr. T. E. Parker.

"Our Commercial and Agricultural Interests" were then proposed, and in reply Mayor Davis remarked that he grand country well adapted for mixed farming, and all we wanted was better railway facilities for the exportation of our products. A route to the sea-board via Hudson's Bay was a necessity for this country. As for the commercial standing of Prince Albert he considered it was the soundest of any other place of its size in the whole Northwest.

Mr. Bartlett then sung, "My Island

"The Land of Our Adoption" was responded to by Mr. Moberly in a neat well-timed speech, which was followed by a song from Mr. Keith, entitled, "You'll never miss the water till the well runs dry."

This was followed by a song from Mr. F.C. Sinclair.

The toast to "The Press" was responded to briefly by Mr. James Stewart, of THE TIMES.

The last toast was to the "Host and Hostess;" which was responded to in a neat little speech by Mr. Hobbs.

After singing "God Save the Queen" the meeting closed.

SASKATOON

It is now definitely settled, Mr. Sinclair says, that the creamery will be open for the regular reception of milk and the manufacture of butter, on the 1st of May, and outsiders are beginning to gather in to their new locations. The Messrs. Anderson, Mr. C. Luke and family, and J. Leslie, J.P., have arrived. Mr. Leslie's family will be here shortly.

Messrs. Sinclair and Leslie are building a new store and expect to be open for general business in a week or ten days at the outside. The greenmen and

PRINCE ALBERT, APRIL 30, 1895

The greatness of England was the theme of the majority of the speaker at the banquet of the St. George's Society last week. We do not at all wonder at the pride taken in England's vast power and excellence, because there is no other nation under heaven who can pretend to attain England's power, wealth and influence. But still by the term England, we must take it in a general sense, because this boasted and also well earned greatness did not attain to its present magnitude by Englishmen alone. The hardy sons of Scotland and Ireland were something of a factor in fighting England's battles, and otherwise helping to build up the glorious Empire of Great Britain. We doubt very much whether the Indian Empire or the Peninsular war together with the field of Waterloo would have the history they now have were it not for the aid rendered by the sons of Erin and Calumny. We do not make these remarks in a carrying petulant spirit. Far from it, we do not at all feel envious when we hear the word England used in connection with the world wide influence of that Empire, because we know that when the word is used it means the United Kingdom. On the contrary we rejoice to hear of England's greatness, because it means the greatness of the whole Empire, and we—whether English, Irish or Scotch—are brethren and are citizens of the greatest, the noblest and the best Empire that the world has ever seen. We rejoice in the greatness of the British Empire, and take no thought whether the nation goes under the general name of England, Ireland or Scotland. But we ardently wish that every citizen of Great Britain would carefully consider whence this greatness is derived. Why is it that the British Empire is increasing so rapidly in population, wealth and influence while the other nations of the world are making very little progress in either? One of the speakers at the banquet said that it was because of the nation's religion. True enough; but why is Great Britain blessed with this religion and the riches wherewith to proclaim the gospel to heathen lands and the influence to make the gospel felt? We have no hesitation in replying that it is because we, the British, are the children of Israel the variable descendants of the Patriarchs, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. We are enjoying to the full the promises made to our forefathers, namely that the seed of Jacob should fill all the corners of the earth; should lead to every nation, but not borrow, should possess the gates of their enemies. Great Britain holds every strategic point on the face of the globe and should be a blessing to all the nations of the earth. This is the secret of England's greatness and England's world wide influence. We are enjoying blessings to-day which no other nation can boast of; but with the blessings of God we hope to participate in greater blessings yet.

The trouble in the East consequent upon the war between the Japs and Chinese is not yet ended, on account of Russia objecting to the terms of the treaty of peace between the two belligerent powers. Russia, it is said, will not allow Japan to annex any territory belonging to China. This will have the effect of backing up the treaty made between China and Japan and opening up fresh difficulties. Russia may have a say in the matter, but if so England too must have a voice in the affair. She cannot remain an uninterested spectator nor will we presume. Under these circumstances it is hard to foresee what complications may yet arise. But at any rate we have no fear but that whatever may be the result, England will not fail to come out right and uppermost in spite of any adverse circumstances. The English never in a hurry; the never least of her powers in war and so not indulge in any threatening or bullying language as other nations are apt to do; but nevertheless she gets ahead of all the same, and if there is any spoil around she manages to gain possession of the lion's share.

The dry windy weather we have had lately has been the means of causing a good deal of inconvenience arising from the unusual and irritating clouds of dust flying about; which reminds us that some street sprinklers to ally the dust would be no bad thing in Prince Albert. But still on the other hand street sprinklers cost money, and the purchase of these machines involves increased taxation and in these hard times we would not for a moment advise that. It is all very well to do all we can to make our town comfortable; but to those who at this time find it a hard struggle to exist, it looks as if it would be better to get along as easy as one can until better times dawn upon us. We understand there is a scheme on foot to water River street by private means, the cost to be defrayed by levying a tax on the business men of that street. If this can be done we certainly will raise no objections thereto; but at the same time we cannot see that it would mend matters much by watering River Street while all the other streets were dry. We fear that a high wind there would be very little diminution of dust flying around in that case. However, that is a matter that doesn't concern us, if the business men also see to pay for it.

Let us prepare the D & A Cresset a Fish.

AASKANA.

Prairie fires are still raging, but more to the south and across the river. Mr. Lemasson, who has a homestead north of here, got burned out the other day and only managed to save a very small portion of his household goods, house, stables, etc., all being consumed. Robt. Tait, a neighbor, barely succeeded in saving his property.

Rev. A. H. Wright has been appointed to take charge of the parishes formerly in Rev. E. K. Matheson's care, and will preach at St. Andrew's on Sunday morning next at 10:30 a.m.

Mrs. Thos. Adams, of Birch Hills, is here on a visit to her relatives.

Chas. Adams succeeded in bagging a couple of geese the other day.

Many farmers in this vicinity are about through seeding.

PRINCE ALBERT FLOUR MILLS.

As my stock of wheat is getting low those having Wheat to sell or grind at my mill will do well to bring it as soon as possible. We have a fine stock of our well known brands of flour on hand at right prices. Our Porridge Gems are taking the place of oatmeal at one third the cost. Have a fine stock of Bran, Shorts and Seed at reduced prices. Thanking everyone for their very liberal patronage since opening up in Prince Albert.
